Explore Climate-Map: A new European resource for climate action

Dear all,

We are excited to share with you Climate-Map – a new online platform created in collaboration with eight European countries: Germany, Ireland, Malta, Italy, Croatia, Cyprus, Switzerland, and Romania.

Climate-Map brings together inspiring examples of climate change prevention from across Europe and offers a wide range of free, practical resources for educators, organisations, and engaged individuals.

Through an interactive map, users can explore step-by-step guides, educational videos, and case studies—available in English and national languages. Whether you're looking for digital tools or hands-on activities, the platform supports both high-tech and low-tech approaches to climate education and engagement.

You can browse the platform by country or explore 12 thematic areas that cover topics such as energy, biodiversity, food, and mobility. Most browsers offer automatic translation of the site into your preferred national language.

Visit the platform here: <https://climate-map.eu>

We also invite you to download our perpetual Climate Change Wall Calendar, available in six national languages (Maltese, German, Croatian, Irish, Greek/Cypriot, and Italian). Each month focuses on a different climate topic and includes videos, case studies, and suggested actions. The calendar can be used year after year and offers creative ways to stay engaged:

- Set personal sustainability goals
- Track your daily climate-positive actions
- Note important dates or reflect on moments of gratitude

We encourage you to explore the platform, share it with your networks, and use the resources to support local climate action.

Best regards
